THE JURY SECURED

Eli Hutchinson Is Now on Trial For His Life.

The Jurymen All Sworn in and the Taking of Testimony Begins.

CIRCUIT COURT DOINGS

After spending all yesterday afternoon and the greater part of the morning in examining jurymen to hear the case against Eli Hutchinson, for the murder of Henry Gray, a full jury was secured about 11 o'clock this morning.

The following jury was empaneled: T.M. Spencer, W.E. Arnold, Dan Willis, J.R. Brown, T.H. Wallace, W.E. Walker, G.A. Gardner, W.A. Derrington, Thomas Clayton, S.H. Pilon, W.A. Davis, J.G. Willis. Over 75 men were not accepted on account of having previously formed an opinion on the case. Ordinarily the prosecution has a right to excuse five jurymen and the defense 15 but in this case the opinion question was greatly the cause for the action in not accepting these thrown out.

County Attorney Eugene Graves made the statement of the case for the commonwealth after the jurors had been empaneled as follows: Hutchinson had met Gray, his brother-in-law, with whom he had quarrelled. They had a few words and Hutchinson pulled a gun. Gray started to run and Hutchinson shot him in the back. Gray turned and other shot was fired in his breast. He fell to the ground and Hutchinson running up kicked him in the side and stamped his face. The injuries caused Gray's death and his assailant fled. He was not captured for two months but was finally landed here from the swamps in Arkansas where he had been in hiding. The killing was done in May during carnival week and aroused much feeling in the lower part of the county where the crime was committed. The evidence is being heard this afternoon. Attorneys Crossland and Reed represent the defense.

Hutchinson's wife is here and sits by his side during the trial. She has been at the jail attending to her husband's wants during the time he was ill from the effects of a broken arm. It is claimed that Gray's little daughter, who was present at the killing, tried to make Hutchinson stop shooting but he threatened to kill her too if she tried to interfere. The court room is well filled with spectators and it is probable that the case will consume several days.

At press time three witnesses had been on the stand. Mr. Gray, wife of the murdered man, took the stand first and testified that she had arrived on the scene of the shooting soon after Gray was shot. That she asked Hutchinson what he had shot her husband for and he replied that he, Gray, had called him a son of a bitch. Gray here spoke up and said that he had not called Hutchinson such a name and Hutchinson then replied that he had come there to kill Gray and had done it. Drs. Frank Boyd, of the city, and Dr. T. M. Baker, of Lovelaceville, the latter who was the first physician on the scene after the shooting had been done, were put on the stand to testify as to the condition of Gray when they saw him first and until his death.

CAME NEAR DYING

DR. GRIFFITH CALLED TO A CHILD WHO ATE NO-TO-BAC TABLETS.

The one year old child of Mr. William Hurst, of Eighth and Clark streets, was poisoned by no-to-bac tablets this morning and for three hours was in a dying condition. Dr. B.B. Griffith was summoned and after hard work with the infant, brought it around and at press time the child was reported better. A boy working about the house had been using the tablets and the child had gotten hold of them. The child had been held by the mother and the doctor had been called to the house. The child was now in a better condition and the mother was very anxious to see the child again.

DR. DUNCAN IS FREE

He Was Released Today on a 20,000 Bond.

The Bail Was Considered Excessive, But He Had No Trouble in Giving It.

A BIG CATTLE DEAL

DR. DUNCAN OUT ON BOND.

Pittsburg, Dec. 4.—Dr. Ellis T. Duncan was released this morning on a $20,000 bond. The amount of bail fixed by the court was objected to by Duncan's attorneys as being excessive, at the same time they stating that they were prepared to give twice that sum.

A BIG CATTLE DEAL.

Harrodsburg, Dec. 4.—The largest cattle deal ever known in this part of the state was made by J. W. Redford and Jacob Huguely, two of the wealthiest and most prominent farmers in Mercer county, to Simon Weil, of Chicago. More than two hundred fine export cattle averaging 1800 pounds each, changed hands at $5.50 per head, the deal represented about $30,000.

WANT A NEW HEARING.

Frankfort, Dec. 4.—At today's session of the court of appeals Judge B. G. Williams, counsel for commonwealth in the case of Calhoun Powers, entered a motion for a rehearing. He asked for ten days. The court took the motion under submission and will pass on it tomorrow.

IS RESTING WELL.

Washington, Dec. 4.—It was announced at the Arlington hotel this morning that former Speaker Reed passed a very comfortable night.

MORE DREAMS

Metropolis Has Additional Information About the Bridge

It Believes the Probability Is Quite Strong for the Project.

Yesterday's Metropolis Herald says: Considerable interest has been aroused by the Herald's recent article concerning the plan of the Frisco system to build from Joppy to this point and bridge the Ohio here, and while every one is elated over the prospect some say it is too good to be true.

However the information in the possession of the Herald while in part of a private nature is considered excellent and besides there is every reason why the bridge should be built. The L. and N. people have always wanted some short route into Chicago while the Frisco system is just as desirous of arranging to run their trains through the territory in the south traversed by the L. and N. Therefore, it seems that their present object is for the Frisco or Old C. and E.I. line to be extended across the river here and to Mayfield, Ky., and joined there by a spur of the L. and N. Thus the latter road would be given access to the great lakes and the Frisco to the gulf.

DISTRICT STEWARDS.

IMPORTANT MEETING IN SESSION AT BROADWAY METHODIST CHURCH THIS AFTERNOON.

Messrs. J. F. Blaylock of Mayfield, and J. R. Ray of Graves county, arrived in the city at noon today. They are Methodist district stewards and come to attend a meeting called by Rev. H. B. Johnston, presiding elder of the Paducah district, for this afternoon. It is now in session at the Broadway Methodist church, and matters of especial importance relating to the district are under consideration, and plans for the new conference year are being outlined. Mr. Sam T. Hubbard of this city, is district steward from the Broadway Methodist church. There morning from the residence at 10 o'clock, burial at Oak Grove.

The Local Grocery Combine.

The grocery combine talked of in Paducah for some time seems to be assuming definite shape. It is understood from a reliable source that the Jake Biederman Grocery and Bakery company has purchased the following groceries: Womble's, at Sixth and Jackson. Nolan's, at Ninth and Tennessee. Mehley's, at Third and Elizabeth. Akln Brothers, at Ninth and Boyd, and the Seck Bakery, at Seventh and Washington streets. In addition it is opening up a new grocery on South Second street, near the market. The combine has options on 15 or 20 more of the smaller groceries in the city, good until January 1. Some of the above already have the announcement of the change on placards. It is said the plan will be to buy in large lots and sell for cash.

ANOTHER SLEET STORM THREATENED.

This afternoon a warning message was received from the superintendent of the Western Union telegraph company, at Nashville, instructing all linemen to be ready at a moment's notice to go out, day or night, and repair wires. The cause of the warning order is another threatened sleet storm, such as struck this section the latter part of last January and did incalculable damage, breaking down hundreds of miles of electric wires. None of the other telephone or telegraph companies received order to the above effect, and it probably means simply that the conditions are favorable for another storm such as the one in January.

Fourteen Die In Hotel Fire.

Chicago, Dec. 4.—Fourteen persons met death in a fire in the Lincoln hotel, 176 Madison street at 6 o'clock this morning. All of the bodies have been recovered. Little damage was done to the hotel but the smoke was so dense that persons who met their death were overcome and died before assistance could reach them.

IN A BAD FIX.

MAJOR ELLITHORPE HAS A CASE OF DELIRIUM TREMENS.

The city officials are at a loss to know what to do with Major Ellithorpe, who is suffering from one of the worst cases of "jimmies" that has ever come under the observation of the police.

Ellithorpe was arrested Thursday while in this condition and although he has been given hypodermic after hypodermic he cannot be relieved. He imagines everything is after him—dogs, sharpshooters and everything imaginable. He also thinks he sees friends who are dead, and has torn up three cells in his endeavor to free himself from the sight. He will not turn on the electric light in the cell because he thinks that it will attract the attention of the sharpshooters. Judge Sanders does not know what to do with him and the suggestion to move him to the city hospital, where he can be placed in a straight jacket, will probably be acted on if he does not get better today.

THE POTTERY NOW COMPLETE.

IT WILL NOT BE RUNNING FOR SOME TIME YET, HOWEVER.

Messrs. Davis and Dunlap of the city have finished the big pottery at Metropolis which will be operated by Paducah people, and have made a fine job of it. While the building is complete the pottery will not be in operation for several weeks yet.

Rev. T. J. Newell, the new pastor of Broadway Methodist church, conducted his prayer meeting last evening. A large congregation was out to hear and meet him, and he made a fine impression upon all. No formal service was held, but his talk as between pastor and people was earnest and evidenced a deep spirituality. He proved himself most pleasant socially in the reception afterward, and was accorded a hearty welcome.

JUDGE SANDERS BACK

Had a Pleasant Trip to Lexington This Week.

Learned Much of the Operation of Second Class Cities But Will Not Divulge Until Saturday.

IS PREPARING AN OPINION

Hon. D. L. Sanders, judge of the police court, returned yesterday afternoon at 6 o'clock from Lexington, where he had gone to look into the methods employed in the operation of the cities of the second class judiciary department.

There had been much contention on the part of local officials as to what the fines in police court should be under the second class charter and to see just how the judicial department of second class cities was run, was the sole object and only of Judge Sanders' investigation. The day he arrived in Lexington the rain was pouring down in torrents. The funerals of Alexander, the noted horse breeder and stock raiser, and also of the deputy city jailer were held upon the arrival and he did not get to look into the matter that day. He has made many notes and will prepare the same into a written form and will Saturday morning read it from his couch.

"I have nothing to say at present," he said, "but will have my say Saturday morning. I have been gone since Sunday morning and was well treated had an excellent time with the exception of rain interfering with my work the first day, and was not bothered once by a crows reporter. I will give no information out whatever until Saturday morning when I will have prepared my notes into regular form. I did not investigate the operation of second class cities for any purpose other than for the benefit of my own department, and although I have notes bearing on the other departments, will say nothing whatever about it as this was not the purpose of my visit."

Saturday there will doubtless be a large crowd to hear the opinion.

WAS REORGANIZED

Ladies' Committee to do More Work Than Usual.

Former Secretary Escott Will Pleased with Texas—Debate Tonight.

The ladies' committee met at the association yesterday afternoon and reorganized the committee with many new members. The winter's work was outlined and some new features of work adopted. The ladies will put forth special efforts towards making the association more than prosperous this winter.

Secretary Escott, formerly of the city but now of Burro, Tex., writes that he is meeting with great success in the work there and that he has chances of making the association one of the best in the state. He is pleased with the country.

The debating club meets tonight and the meeting will be well attended. The subject "Has Andrew Carnegie placed his surplus funds to the best advantage in erecting libraries?" is an interesting one and will draw many to the association tonight.

STEAMSHIP AND RAIL

Several Persons Killed and Injured Yesterday.

Oil Explodes On a Steamship—Trains Wrecked Near Chattanooga.

OR GREAT DAMAGE FINANCIALLY

STEAMSHIP WRECKED.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 4.—While the steamer Progresso was lying at the wharf of the Fulton Iron works at Harbor View this morning, an explosion occurred and as a result twelve men are missing, a score more injured and property to the value of $200,000 was destroyed.

The missing: Assistant Engineer Sparks, Joseph Rex, Charles Glenn, Howard Dowe, James Cavell, Den Gallagher, Joseph Maguire, F. Nelson, C. C. McGregor, Jack Strand, Harry Small, Jack Ashton.

The ship was built of steel. The fire was nearly all below deck. There were 14 oil tanks containing about 400 barrels of oil, in all, and despite the efforts of the fire department, this continued to burn fiercely for hours after the explosion. Numerous minor explosions occurred at short intervals, but the injury and loss of life was due to the first one.

The loss to the Fulton company by the wrecking of the building and the burning of the wharf will exceed $20,000. It is estimated that the Progresso was worth about $175,000. The explosion shook all the buildings at Harbor View, and the shock was felt a mile away. Windows were broke several blocks from the scene.

James W. Spiers, Jr., general manager of the Fulton Iron Works, is positive that the explosion was due to the oil, and not to the bursting of the boiler. The theory is that gas generated in one of the oil tanks.

ON THE RAILROAD.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Dec. 4.—In a collision on the Cincinnati Southern railroad at Sunbright, Tenn., this morning about 5 o'clock the fast passenger train from Cincinnati to Chattanooga was derailed and five coaches burned. Two men were killed, a negro tramp fatally injured and eight men seriously injured.

The dead: Frank Elliott, fireman, of Chattanooga; Richard Helm, express messenger, Covington, Ky. Fatally injured: Fred Mathis, colored, Madison, Ga.

Seriously injured: John T. Eason, chief mail clerk, Danville, Ky., compound fracture of leg and large gash in head.

M. C. Caddell, mail clerk, Somerset, Ky., leg and arm broken and face badly cut.

W. W. Smith, mail clerk, Harriman, Tenn., back dislocated and head and shoulders cut and bruised.

J. W. Fowler, engineer, Chattanooga, internally injured in abdomen and bruised.

Frank Connors, engineer, Somerset, Ky., left side and leg badly scalded and cut on head.

Oswen Urd, fireman, Somerset, Ky., left arm dislocated and head cut and bruised.

J. V. Taylor, baggagemaster, Chattanooga, right shoulder dislocated.

No passengers were injured. A string of cars knocked out on the main line caused the accident.

THEY CAN'T AGREE A NOTED WILL CASE

Council Still Divided on Question of Police Officers.

Several Ordinances Given Final Passage at Last Night's Meeting

WRANGLE OVER A CONTRACT

The council held a called meeting last night with all the members present except Councilmen Woolfolk and Gilson.

Second passage was given the following ordinance, regulating the market house, fixing the salary of city weigher, city attorney, sexton of Oak Grove and wharfmaster, making the offices of license inspector and market master elective instead of appointive.

The work of Flournoy and Harrison, who revised the city ordinances, was reported well done and the report was concurred in. The two ordinance committees which read them over were allowed $21 each.

First passage was given to an ordinance repealing the law giving the city control of the sale of liquor one mile of the city limits.

An ordinance was given first passage requiring stone to be used for curbing around all lots in Oak Grove, and a penalty of from $5 to $10 was attached.

City Engineer Washington reported that the contract for carpenter work on the Sixth street bridge over Island Creek had been let to Mr. B. T. Davis. When the question of ratification came up, a protest was filed from the carpenter union, calling attention to the fact that the city had adopted a resolution that all city work be done by organized labor, and asking that a clause be inserted in the contract stipulating that Mr. Davis employ only union men on the work. Mr. Wallace, of the union explained that it was not a personal matter, and that it was not desired that the contract be taken from Mr. Davis, but simply that he be required to employ union men on the work. After the usual wrangle the contract was ratified without any stipulation as to what kind of men should be employed. Councilmen Hummel, Taylor and Nichols voted against the contract.

The police question came up, and Mayor Yeiser said that the police commissioners had asked for 26 officers, the same as now. For this reason he was in favor of 26 officers.

This started a heated argument, and after each member had his say, a vote on the 26 resulted in a tie, Councilmen Fowler, Reed, Brooks, Jackson and Johnson voting against it and the other five for it.

The motion to have 20 policemen fared likewise, and it was decided to allow the matter to remain in abeyance until after the aldermanic board meets tonight.

Former City Engineer Wilcox was allowed $30 for a buggy used at the post house.

S. A. Womble was granted a transfer of liquor license from Sixth and Jackson to Ninth and Court, in Whiteside's old stand.

An ordinance was ordered drawn requiring the numbers of wagons, put on by order of law, to be of different colors, so officers can tell at a glance what sort of a license has been taken out by the owner, whether for a one horse, two horse or other character of wagon.

Councilman Brooks reported that the sewerage record in possession of former Inspector George A. Gardner was the latter's own private property, and could not be taken from him.

The board then adjourned.

CASE REVERSED.

FEDERAL COURT OF APPEALS AT CINCINNATI DECIDES IT.

Local attorneys have received word that the federal court of appeals at Cincinnati has reversed Judge Evans, of this district, in the case of Lagomarsino and Horton against James and James, Moore and Moore and Roberts and Clark, for possession of mineral lands in Graves county. The lower court found for the plaintiff, who claimed to have a lease on certain lands before the defendants came into possession of it, and an appeal was taken the case being reversed.

Superintendent Young Taylor, of the dry docks, has about 20 barges to repair and is taking contracts for more daily. Work for ship carpenters, joiners, millwrights, etc., returned home at noon. He was accompanied by her mother.

Judge Evans Decided One at Louisville Yesterday.

It Has Afforded Rich Pickings for the Lawyers—Deceased Lived in Southwest Kentucky.

HE PRACTICED IN CHRISTIAN

Judge Walter Evans, of the federal court, has decided a case at Louisville that will be of interest to the people of Southwest Kentucky, where one of the principals once resided.

It was yesterday that Judge Evans read to the bar there an opinion constraining the will of Fidelio O. Sharp, relative of Solomon P. Sharp, the famous attorney general, and himself one of the most noted of Kentucky's lawyers who practiced during the early half of the nineteenth century. Like that of Samuel J. Tilden, Sharp's will has been a greater boon for his legal colleagues than for the objects of his bounty, and the federal court proceedings are but one branch of the litigation caused by the various ways of construing it.

In his opinion the court sustains the claims of Wm. Mackenzie, a resident of Ireland, who seeks to foreclose a mortgage given him by Mrs. Mary Evelina McClellan, of Memphis, Tenn., to secure him for $5,000, which she borrowed. Mrs. McClellan was a daughter and devotee of Sharp, and the mortgage she furnished the plaintiff covered certain real estate in Christian county, which she alleged had been left her by her father in fee simple.

Mrs. McClellan died in 1899, and Harry S. and Robert M. McClellan and Lily A. and T. R. Trounkle, her heirs opposed the payment of the mortgage on the ground that Sharp, by his will, left Mrs. McClellan merely a life estate in the property in controversy. The court holds that she inherited a fee simple and that the estate can be subjected for the amount.

Judge Evans makes the following reference to the lawyer whose will caused the trouble: "In my early boyhood the fame of Fidelio O. Sharp, in Christian county, where I lived, was very considerable, and has proved to be locally quite enduring. His prowess as a 'land-lawyer' and as a bad speller was equally renowned. His reputation as a lawyer, largely dependent on tradition, has been diminished by time, whose work has probably been aided by some troubles which those concerned have had in ascertaining the meaning of his will. However, he was not the only astute lawyer whose testamentary efforts have contributed to the labors of the courts."

THE RED MEN.

CLUB ROOMS WILL BE READY FOR OCCUPANCY TOMORROW NIGHT.

The Red Men hope to open their club rooms tomorrow night at the regular meeting. It has been well fitted out, and the committee in charge of the work is composed of Messrs. Al Foreman, L. L. Bebout, Robert Arnold, David Cross, J. J. Freunlich and Melvin Wallerstein.

The big ball will be given New Year's Eve, and is expected to be a most delightful affair. It was postponed some weeks ago on account of the death of a member.

FOR PERJURY.

MAN WHO SENT JESSIE MORRISON TO PENITENTIARY CONVICTED OF FALSE SWEARING.

Elmore, Kansas, Dec. 4—A jury rendered a verdict of guilty against J. O. Brownfield, the principal witness for the defense in the case of Miss Jessie Morrison for the murder of Mrs. Olin Castle, who was charged with perjury. The penalty is not less than seven years in the penitentiary. Brownfield's testimony was given at Miss Morrison's second trial, which resulted in her being found guilty and given a ten years' sentence.

EXCITEMENT ABOUT THE JAIL.

Some of the prisoners in the county jail lighted some waste paper near the lower row of cells last night about 10 o'clock and the smoke displeased those above, and they lit paper to attract the attention of passersby. Attorney Oscar Kahn fired a pistol into the air to attract Jailer Jones and soon the latter came over and learned the cause of trouble. The incident caused considerable excitement in the vicinity of the jail, and gave rise to the report that the jail was on fire.

HAD BETTER GO SLOW.

It is reported that Attorney Gilbert, in his fight to collect commissions instead of accepting a salary, will urge as one of his arguments the allegation that Paducah is not legally a second class city. Drowning men grasp at straws, and this may be the best reason that could be offered in favor of the attorney holding his job, but a fight along that line, seeking to create confusion in regard to the city's class, will not be commended by the people, and the attorney might find it profitable to review the experience of other officials who attempted something along the same line a few months ago. It is not believed by many good lawyers that such a reason will stand long in court, but even if it should, it would virtually mean a set-back to the city in order that one man, or a few men, might hold office, and they would be committing political suicide.

To get down to the root of the affair, it may later develop in the courts that the attorney is fortunate to be allowed to hold on at all. It may be that a $100 salary would prove preferable to none at all, for there is a serious doubt if the office to which Mr. Gilbert was elected exists at all under the present charter. He was elected under the third class charter and the office to which he was elected was "prosecuting attorney of the police court" whose duties are "to attend all sessions of the police court and to prosecute all criminal and penal cases in said court," etc. The above office was filled by the people every four years. There is no such office under the second class charter. No where in the charter can anything be found referring to "a prosecuting attorney."

The office Mr. Gilbert is trying to hold is "city attorney." Now it is alleged if he had been elected city attorney under the other charter he would have held the position at present held by Attorney Worthen who has changed to "city solicitor." Mr. Gilbert was not elected "city attorney," which he now claims to be, because "city attorney" under the charter in force when he was elected was something entirely different from what it is under this charter, and no city attorney has ever been chosen under the new charter, consequently it is said by several good lawyers, he cannot hold an office to which he was never elected. The office to which he was elected "prosecuting attorney," was abolished when the new charter went into effect, and while the duties then performed by the prosecuting attorney remain to be performed by some other officer under the new charter, just as those of marshal remain to be performed by the chief of police, the fact that the duties he now performs as city attorney are the same as those he was expected to perform as prosecuting attorney, is no reason he can hold an office because he was elected to another. Marshal Crow could just as consistently claim he is chief of police, because the duties the chief is expected to perform under the new charter are the same as he was elected to perform under the old. If Attorney Gilbert makes a fight, he may according to good attorneys find himself shut out entirely.

Councilman Joe Petter, the great champion of the cow—and the people, new seems to be on the side of those who want to keep the police force at the top notch, numerically speaking. He has no excuse for it, apparently. He claims always to have been for retrenchment, but in this case he is sadly inconsistent with former positions. He is in favor of cutting down expenses, but does not want to start in on the police force. A true friend of the people would be in favor of starting in anywhere if the expenses could be reduced without impairing the service. Councilman Petter takes some queer positions for a "friend of the cow"—and the people. The fact that the Yelzer crowd is in favor of keeping the force as large as possible ought to be significant enough to induce him to vote the other way. Most of those in favor of a large police force are those who have some interest in the appointments. The only thing the councilmen ought to consider is whether or not Paducah can get along satisfactorily with a smaller force. We say if she can, to try it. If she can not, go ahead and fix the number at whatever is absolutely necessary, no more and no less. So far as we are able to learn, Councilman Petter has never made any effort to ascertain how well the city could get along with less police officers.

The new trial granted former Secretary of State Powers shows that the Republican claim that the courts that tried Powers were political courts and the verdicts partisan verdicts, is now again sustained by the court of appeals, this being the third trial granted him because the other ones were unfair and illegal. It is high time the Democrats were learning that they cannot railroad the Republicans of Kentucky to the gallows or penitentiary quite as easily as they may have thought. All the Republicans have ever asked was that the alleged Goebel conspirators be given fair trials. This they have failed to get, but some of them have been acquitted nevertheless. In time a gigantic Democratic conspiracy aided by a $100,000 corruption fund, to convict somebody for Senator Goebel's murder will doubtless be revealed, and past outrages laid bare to the people of Kentucky and the whole world.

The deplorable killing of young Fitzgerald of Michigan, in Guatemala City by young Godfrey Hunter of Kentucky was an unfortunate affair, and perhaps, as has been claimed in some of the dispatches, a cowardly murder. But this does not justify Congressman Smith of Michigan making a fool of himself by trying to impose on congress, which now wastes time enough as it is, the unnecessary and senseless trouble of an investigation. The killing, whatever it was, occurred outside the jurisdiction of the United States and there is no use to congress making an investigation simply for the gratification of some member's indolence curiosity.

All the people, including the taxpayers and property owners, ask of the local boards is to decide something definite about the brick street. If it is the contractor's business to make the repairs, compel him to make them. If not, let it be announced that the city, owing to some technical error, or for other reason, will have to make the repairs, and then get to work to do it. There are repairs badly needed, especially in the pavements, and they ought to be made new by some one. The people will be better satisfied than they are now no matter who has to do the work.

The people would appreciate it a great deal more if some effort were made to reduce the number of councilmen, instead of the number of policemen.

THE POLICE QUESTION

It is Probable That There Will be a Small Reduction, if any at all.

At Present the Ordinance May Remain As It Now Is on the Books.

COUNCIL CAN'T AGREE

At present it looks as if there is going to be a deadlock in the council in the matter of fixing the number of police officers Paducah is to have during the next year. Some of the members want 26, the present number, while others want less. Each side seems equally firm, and the vote is a tie every time it is taken on the ordinance, half of the members voting against any number under 26, and the others voting against anything that much.

One of the police commissioners said today that his individual opinion was that they would finally compromise on about 20.

At present there are 23 patrolmen, a chief, captain and a lieutenant, 26 in all. This gives 11 for one watch and twelve for the other. There is a disposition to adhere to the present method of policing. It seems, as there are officers now on duty constantly who serve half a night and half in day time.

The old way, the greater part of the men were on the night watch, and went off sometimes two or three hours before the day men came on, leaving the city without any protection in the meantime.

Unless the council is able to agree on the number of officers, the old ordinance, it is claimed, will remain in effect, giving the city the same number of officers she now has, and fixing the salary at the same amount, $60 a month.

MURRELL'S ADDITION TO PADUCAH.

Murrell's Addition to Paducah was sold yesterday to Edgar W. Whittemore and W. P. Holland, the consideration being $8,000. This addition lies at the intersections of Adams, Jackson, Ohio and Tennessee streets with Twenty-fourth, Twenty-fifth, Twenty-sixth, Twenty-seventh and Twenty-eighth streets, and as the land is level and dry and nearly all covered with large oak trees, it is one of the most desirable places to be found for home-seekers in and about the city. The lots, all of them 50x165 feet, will be at once put on the market, and on terms so easy that anyone can buy, that is, $5 cash and $2 per month, the prices ranging from $100 to $150. The first corners of course get the best selection. A print of the addition can be seen and full information obtained at Whittemore's 510 Broadway Agency.

BURNS WERE FATAL

Miss Daisy Nelson Meets With a Horrible Fate at Her Home Here.

Clothing Caught Fire From the Grate and She Lived But a Few Hours.

THE FUNERAL ARRANGEMENTS

Miss Daisy Nelson, the 22 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nelson of 1218 Broadway, died at 11 o'clock last night from burns received yesterday afternoon about 3:10 o'clock by her clothing catching fire in front of the grate.

The young lady was washing a pet dog, with her back to the fire, when her clothing caught fire. She did not know it for some little time, the first intimation she received being when she felt the heat and looked around.

The blaze then quickly enveloped her body, and by the time her screams had brought assistance her hair had almost burned off. Her mother assisted in fighting the flames, and was herself badly burned, but when the burning clothing was removed it was found that no portion of the body had escaped horrible burns except the waist, which was more protected than the remainder. Everything was burned off except her shoes and under-clothing.

Drs. Meyer and Hicks and Pulliam and Griffith were summoned, and did all possible to relieve the young lady's sufferings, but she lingered in agony until last night, when death came to her relief.

The deceased was born and reared here, and her father is a well known carpenter at the Illinois Central shops. She leaves besides her parents one sister.

No funeral arrangements have yet been made.

IN POLICE COURT.

JUDGE SANDERS TODAY HAD ONLY TWO CASES.

Judge Sanders who returned last night had only two cases on the police court docket today and these were disposed of in a few minutes.

Observations

....at Random

One of the members of the Lillian Mortimer company had a disagreeable experience yesterday on her way home from Metropolis revealing quite a coincidence. The company went down to fill in a date and some of the men had been twitting her about her trunk falling into the river. She only laughed incredulously at them, but when they started back to Paducah the first thing that happened was when the young lady's trunk fell overboard. It was fished out with some difficulty, but the young lady had to hastily take the wet costumes out and wring them then and there in order to preserve them. It is the first time any of the company had to do her own washing.

Last night at the Kentucky a young man who had three ladies with him created considerable fun for those around him. He was sitting there apparently enjoying himself when he went to sleep despite the presence of the three vivacious young ladies. Those around him began to giggle, and others, knowing that it was a part, serious part of the play, turned and saw him sitting there with his head heavy on his throbbing bosom, unconscious to the world. Everybody began to laugh, and there was imminent danger that the young man would contribute more to the general amusement than the performance itself when a kindly disposed friend reached over and aroused him. It may be said in the young man's favor, however, that he did not snore.

Clerk Dan McFadden says that the more he sees human nature through his little pigeon hole at the postoffice, the fonder he becomes of Charlie Clark's coon dog. The window was newly varnished this morning, and after placards of "paint" had been put up it soon became evident that signs made no difference. Everybody who came along had to gently touch the varnish to find out whether the placards lied or not.

Finally half a barrel hoop was found and nailed in such a manner that it acted as an improvised railing to keep the public away from the fresh varnish. It was rather a frail affair, and no sooner than it was put up and the people began dropping up to call for their mail the trouble began. Every person who came had to seize the hoop and give it a pull to see how strong it was, and twice before the writer called it was pulled completely down. At last accounts Clerk McFadden was impatiently hoping that the varnish would soon dry and he wouldn't have to tell everybody individually and collectively to "hands off."

Judge W. D. Greer tells a story of a well known old magistrate who used to live up in Crittenden county, and who always agreed with the last attorney who made a speech before him. The merits of a case of law involved were neither so important, consequently, as getting in the last word. When a lawyer would finish speaking, the old justice would look complacently at the opposing counsel and reply, with a dignified nod of his head, "That's what I say, sir, that's what I say." What do you say, Mr. —?" the last to the opposing counsel.

One day there were two attorneys named Black and Bine who were opponents in a case before him. They had had it nip and tuck all the morning, with no prospect of a settlement, as the old magistrate would look at the other lawyer as soon as one would finish and exclaim, "That's what I say. What do you say, Mr. —?" In this way the attorneys kept busy talking one after the other while the spectators began to wonder how and when it all would end. Finally Mr. Black arose and said: "Your honor, as you well know, the code says that the one on whom the burden is shall have the last say. I therefore contend, as the burden in this case is on me, that I have a right to make the last speech."

"That's just what I say, Mr. Black," acquiesced the court. "Now Mr. Bine, what do you say?"

Needless to say, Mr. Bine made the best of the opportunity, and it is recorded that Mr. Black did not get the last say after all, despite the fact that both the burden and the code were in his favor.

The Cost of Cannon.

Heavy ordinance is not quoted in the steel market and it has no established price in the hardware trade. The Watervliet arsenal, however, reports the cost of the goods it manufactures, and some of the more striking figures are as follows: Twelve-inch breech-loading rifle, $39,249.15; another style is $1,444 cheaper; 10-inch breech-loading rifle, $23,424.48; 8-inch breech-loading rifle, $12,369.32; 6-inch rapid-fire gun, $7,527.06; 3-inch breech-loading rifle, field piece, $2,677.20, though there is another style that costs a good deal more. The 12-inch breech-loading mortars cost only $10,262.57, and the 10-inch mortars cost $5,866.67. This report does not give the cost of ammunition for the large guns, but the Frankford arsenal makes blank cartridges for mortars and evening gun fire for 33 cents each.

Social Notes and About People.

PRETTY WEDDING LAST EVENING.

The wedding of Miss Nellie Anna Threlkeld and Mr. Arthur Oswald Moers took place last evening at the First Cumberland Presbyterian church in the presence of a large number of friends and acquaintances of the popular young couple. A charming simplicity characterized the pretty occasion. The ceremony was impressively performed by the Rev. J. O. Reid, and Miss Myrtle Clover presided at the organ.

Miss Zoe Farnley acted as maid of honor and wore white organdy. Mr. Lacy Threlkeld brother of the bride, was the best man. The ushers were: Mr. Claude Johnson, Mr. William Reid, Mr. S. H. Miller and Mr. H. M. Threlkeld.

The bride looked very pretty in a dainty gown of white organdy. She is the daughter of Mrs. Maria Threlkeld of South Ninth street, and is very attractive and popular in a large circle of friends.

Mr. Moers is a valued employee of the Alden Knitting Mills. He is the son of a Methodist minister in New Orleans and has only been living here two years. He is a fine young man, and is active in the local Y. M. C. A. work.

A pleasant reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's mother, attended by a number of guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Moers are keeping house on South Ninth street.

CHARITY BALL TONIGHT.

The charity ball this evening at the Palmer will be a delightful social event, and a large attendance is promised.

It will open at 9 o'clock with a german figure led by Mr. Roy Only, then follow the grand march and program dancing, and the cotillion later. The young ladies have been busy all day making charming favors for the german, and it will be especially pretty and effective.

The patrons of the ball will receive in the parlors before the dancing begins.

EVENING WITH TENNYSON.

The Senior Epworth League of the Broadway Methodist church will have a literary and social entertainment in the league parlors of the church this evening. It is "An Evening With Tennyson," and will be especially delightful.

MAGAZINE CLUB.

The Magazine club is being entertained by Mrs. John P. Campbell this afternoon. Harper's, Review of Reviews, Atlantic Monthly, Outlook, Little Journeys and Munsey's are down for discussion.

FORMERLY LIVED HERE.

MRS. J. D. COLE DIES AT BATTLE CREEK, MICH.

Mrs. J. D. Cole of Battle Creek, Mich., died Tuesday of general debility after a lingering illness. She was 80 years of age and leaves relatives here. The deceased was born in Elizabethtown, Ill., and lived here for one year prior to her departure to Battle Creek, where she has been residing with her daughter, Mrs. Kate Butler. She leaves here a daughter, Mrs. B. Wheeler, wife of the well known I. O. car repairing foreman.

KEPT HER CHILDREN.

THE RIGHT FOOD BROUGHT THEM BACK TO HEALTH.

Food purchased from curiosity saved the lives of two children in a family in Ulysses, Wis.

The mother says: "We had bought a package of Grape-Nuts, attracted by its pleasant, suggestive name, and found it a pleasant food. As my five months old baby liked it, I fed it to her and found it as satisfactory as — Baby Food, which I had been using and paying 50 cents for a much smaller package."

"Shortly after this three of the children came down with the whooping cough, my oldest one was taken with pneumonia and the little 3 year old strained her stomach in some manner, so that she vomited blood and could not retain anything on her stomach. She continually cried with hunger, and it was terrible to see her grow weaker and weaker, until she did not have strength to keep her eyes open. I was so overworked nursing all of them night and day that I finally woke up to the fact that a change must be wrought and that at once."

"I shall always believe that divine inspiration whispered 'Grape-Nuts.' At first I did not give the solid part; I poured boiling water on it and let it stand until the water had drawn out some of the strength, added some rich, sweet cream, and gave the little one a few spoonfuls at a time. She kept it down and it nourished her, so that after awhile I could feed her the Grape-Nuts themselves until she got strong, and she is today as rugged as I could wish. Meanwhile the oldest girl was unable to turn her head or swallow solid food, and for weeks her strength was kept up by Grape-Nuts softened in cream, given a spoonful at a time, until she got strong enough to take other food. They are both well and strong now, and I feel that I owe Grape-Nuts for two of my hearty, healthy children."

PEPSIN SYRUP CO.

Chicago, Ill.

Monticello, Ill. December 19, 1902.
Gentlemen:—Before my food in a hurried and irregular way, sometimes taking only five or six minutes to finish a meal, brought on indigestion and sick headaches, which troubled me so much that I sought the doctor's advice. My diet was rough and simple and my eyes full and heavy. The doctor said my blood and stomach were badly out of order, and advised me to take a regular course of treatment. I took his medicine for two weeks without getting any better. One of my friends who had been using advised me to try that. I bought a bottle that same day, and began to get better at once. Within a month I was like a new being—felt light, happy and well, and I have enjoyed perfect health since, thanks to your excellent remedy.

Dr. Caldwell's (Laxative) Syrup Pepsin

Very truly yours,

MADIE WHELAN, 64 W. Taylor St.

MAN A RATHER POOR LOT.

Some of His Faculties Compared With Those of Other Animals.

"Man in a vain sort of an animal at all times," observed a thoughtful citizen, "and in his process of naming and classifying things around him he has attempted to leave reminders of himself in every possible place, and he has generally succeeded, for one's eyes may not escape falling on something named after some of his attributes. But when we come to think of it, when we come to look nature squarely in the face, man is not the only thing in the land which can lay claim to highly developed senses.

"Take the human eye. Unquestionably the little bundle of nerves in the eye, which make visualization possible and which present the mind with photographic refinements which no art has yet equaled, is one of the physiological marvels and opens up an endless field for speculation in the realm of psychology, that involved riddle of science in whose presence even the giants have cowered and skunked in hopeless ignorance. Yet this eye, discerning with so much delicacy when the picture is no further than the wall of one's room—this eye with its encased nerves—this would be looked upon with dignified scorn by your soaring eagle if he only knew how much farther he could see than a human being.

"Take the human ear. We may not hear so well as the rats and mice that burrow under the palaces in which we live or the squirrel that capers yonder in the forest and countless other things one might mention. We may differentiate with greater accuracy and trace refinements in sound which these lower creatures may not trace, but when it comes to the matter of catching the sound at long range their ears seem to have been more perfectly constructed.

"It is conceded that no human voice has ever been heard which could equal in sweetness of tone the lays which one may hear in the orchard. No human being ever sang more sweetly than Patti, but she never sang so sweetly as the meadow lark when he pours his gurgling love song out on the summer air or the oriole when he shades his silvered octave from the bending bough.

"What device for measuring water pressure has man invented which will compare with the nerves which string the scales of the fish? It is a sense which is not represented in the human category. Man must resort to artificialities in order to learn the air pressure and the degree of heat or cold. But it is different with the fish, for he can always tell just what the water pressure is, and he knows how much he can stand, and he acts accordingly.

"Take the olfactory nerves. Man is all right when it comes to attar of roses, violet perfumeries and this and that sort, but you may pick out the most odorous old hound in the swamps of Mississippi, and if he knew how much superior his sense of smell is to man's—well, he wouldn't want to be caught in a man's company.

"No, I am not running my own creed down. I am just relating a few things which ought to make us all natural lovers of the many deserving beauties that we not of in these hurrying times, and among them may be counted the things mentioned. Prove it? Prove nothing. I am just telling you."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

An Ancient Monument.

In the churchyard at Newcastle, Cumberland, England, an isolated spot about twelve miles from any railway station, is a monument bearing the inscription, "The First Year of Eborac, King of this Realm"—i. e., A. D. 679. Another inscription (Runic) on the west side says that it was set up as a "Standard of Victory in Memory of Aelfrith, Lately King" (of Northumbria), who played so important a part in the history of the time.

An interesting account of the cross is given in Bishop Hrovuc's work, "The Conversion of the Heptarchy." He says that the inscriptions are "the earliest examples known to be in existence of English literature," and "looking to the importance in the history of the world of the conversion of England, there is no historical monument in these lands to compare with the Bewcastle cross."

The shaft as it stands is a square pillar composed of a single block of gray freestone fourteen and a half feet high. The cross head is gone, but when entire the monument must have been about twenty-one feet high.

His Chance.

Conjuror (pointing to a large cabinet)—Now, ladies and gentlemen, allow me to exhibit my concluding trick. I would ask any lady in the company to step on the stage and stand in this cupboard. I will then close the door. When I open it again, the lady will have vanished without leaving a trace behind.

Gentleman in Front Seat (aside to his wife)—I say, old woman, do me a favor and step up.—London Tit-Bits.

Publisher's Nest Answer.

David Williams, the publisher of technical and trade newspapers, one day wandered into the office of one of the editors for a general talk about matters of mutual interest. The place was somewhat shabby, and the editor took advantage of the opportunity to suggest that the wall be repapered, a new carpet provided, and other improvements made which would conduce materially to his comfort, concluding his catalogue of what he wanted with the sententious and somewhat superfluous remark: "I never could work to good advantage in a hog pen."

Mr. Williams looked about him and rendered further conversation on the subject unnecessary by quietly remarking:

"That is the first time I ever heard the term hog pen applied by a gentleman to an apartment which was peculiarly and exclusively his own."

CASE =113=

By...
Emile
Gaboriau

Had Cavallion been less bewildered
he would have seen blank disappointment depicted on the detective's face
after the perusal of the note. Fanfer-lot had cherished the hope that he was about to possess a very important document, and who knows but that it would clearly prove the guilt or innocence of Prosper. Whereas he had only seized a love letter written by a man who was evidently more anxious about the welfare of the woman he loved than about his own. Valhly did he puzzle over the letter, hoping to discover some hidden meaning. It proved nothing for or against the writer. The two words "absolutely everything" were underscored. It is true, but they could be interpreted in so many ways. Fanferlot folded up the note and slipped it into his pocket.

"A thousand thanks, monsieur, for the information, and in return, if you please, I will relieve you of the trouble of executing your commission. I will myself take this note to Mme. Nina Gipsy. I will also give you a piece of advice. If I were in your place, I would return quietly to business and
have nothing more to do with this affair."

The poor fellow obeyed. Slowly and with swelling heart he returned to Notre Dame street. He asked himself
how he could serve Prosper, warn Mme. Gipsy and, above all, be revenged
upon this odious detective who had just made him suffer such cruel humiliation. He had no sooner turned the corner of the street than Fanferlot
went into the house, gave his name to the porter as Prosper Bertomy, went up stairs and knocked at the first door
he came to.

A young servant dressed in the most fanciful livery opened the door.

"Is Mme. Gipsy at home?"

The little groom hesitated. Seeing this, Fanferlot showed his note.

"M. Prosper charged me to hand this note to madame and wait for an answer."

"Come in, and I will let madame
know you are here."

The name of Prosper produced its effect. Fanferlot was ushered into a little room furnished in blue and gold silk damask. But he had not time to peruse his inventory. One of the door curtains was pushed aside, and Mme.
Nina Gipsy appeared. Mme. Gipsy lay, or to speak more correctly, was, quite young, small and graceful, with a brown, or, rather, gold colored quid-ron, complexion and the hands and feet of a child. She eyed her visitor
with the most disdainful surprise.

"What do you want?" she said.

"I am charged, my dear madame, to answer in his humblest and softest tone, by M. Bertomy to give you
this note."

Fanferlot slowly drew Prosper's note
from his pocket and with a low presented it to Mme. Gipsy.

"Read," he said.

At a glance she read its contents.
She turned very red, then very pale.
She trembled from head to foot. Her limbs seemed to give way, and she tottered so that Fanferlot, thinking she was about to fall, extended his arms
to catch her. Useless precaution!
Mme. Gipsy was one of those women whose inert listlessness conceals in-doubtable energy—fragile looking creatures whose powers of endurance and resistance are unlimited, catlike in their soft grace and delicacy, especially catlike in their nerves and muscles
of steel.

"Explain yourself! What does all this mean? Do you know anything about the contents of this letter? Prosper is to be arrested, accused of being a thief?"

"Yes, madame; he is accused of taking 350,000 francs from the bank safe."
"It is false, infamous, absurd!" she cried. "Prosper steal? Is he absurd!
Why should he steal? Is he not rich?"

"M. Bertomy is not rich. He has nothing but his salary."

This answer seemed to confound
Mme. Gipsy.

"But," she insisted, "I have always seen him have plenty of money. Not rich—then?"

She dared not finish. But her eye
met Fanferlot's, and they understood
each other.

"No," she cried, "I regret to say that Prosper would never have stolen one cent for me! One can understand a man who is trusted robbing a bank
for a woman he loves, but Prosper
does not love me. He never has loved me. But I love him, and it is for me to save him! I will see his chief, the miserable wretch who dares to accuse
him. I will prove that he is innocent.
Come, monsieur, let us go, and I promise
you that before sunset he shall be free, or I shall be in prison with him."

Mme. Gipsy's project was certainly laudable and prompted by the noblest sentiments. Unfortunately it was impracticable. Besides, it would be going counter to the plans of the detective.

"What will you gain by acting thus,
my dear madame?" asked Fanferlot.
"Nothing. I can assure you that you have not the least chance of success.
You will compromise Prosper. Who knows if you will not be suspected as his accomplice? M. Bertomy expressly forbade such a course in his letter."

to cross her mind, and she cried:

"Oh, I understand now! Fool that I was for not seeing it before! But where am I to go?"

"Did not M. Bertomy say, my dear lady, to the other end of Paris—to a boarding house or hotel?"

"But I don't know where to find any."

Fanferlot seemed to be reflecting, but he had great difficulty in concealing
his delight at a sudden idea that dashed upon him. His little black eyes fairly danced with joy.

"I know of a hotel," he said at last,
"but it might not suit you."

"Where is it?"

"On the other side of the river, Quai
St. Michel, the Archangel, kept by Mme. Alexandre."

Mme. Nina was never long making up her mind.

"Here are writing materials. Write your recommendation."

"With these three lines," he said,
handing her the letter, "you can make
Mme. Alexandre do anything you wish."

"Very well. Now how am I to let Cavallion know my address? It is he who should have brought me Prosper's
letter."

"He was unable to come, dear madame," interrupted the detective. "But I will tell him where he can find you."

Mme. Gipsy was about to send for a carriage, but Fanferlot said he was in a hurry and would send her one. He seemed to be a luck that day, for a cab was passing the door, and he hailed
it.

"Wait here," he said to the driver
after telling him that he was a detective, "for a little brunette who is packing her trunks. If she tells you to drive her to Quai St. Michel, crack your whip. If she gives you any other address, get down from your seat and arrange your harness. I will keep in sight."

He stepped across the street and stood in the door of a wine store. He had not long to wait. In a few minutes the loud crackling of a whip apprised him that Mme. Nina had started for the Archangel.

"Ah!" said he gayly. "I hold her, at any rate!"

CHAPTER III.

At the same hour that Mme.
Nina Gipsy went to find refuge at the Archangel, so highly recommended by Fanferlot, the Squirrel, Prosper Bertomy
was being entered on the judge's book
at the police office. There he had to wait two hours while the commissary
went to receive orders from higher authorities. When it was announced to him that a coach was waiting for him
at the door, he got up, but before going
out requested permission to light a cigarette, which was granted. It was that mild weather, a bright spring morning. As the coach went along Montmartre street Prosper kept his head
out of the window, smilingly complaining at being imprisoned on such a lovely day when everything outside was so sunny and pleasant.

"It is singular," he said. "I never felt so great a desire to take a walk."

To the court clerk while he was going through the formalities of the commitment Prosper replied with haughty
brevity to the indispensable questions
asked him.

But when he was ordered to empty
his pockets on the table and they began to search him his eyes flashed
with indignation, and a single tear dropped upon his flushed cheek. In an instant he had recovered his calmness
and stood up motionless, with his arms
raised in the air so that the rough creatures about him could more conveniently
search him from head to foot to assure themselves that he had no suspicious object hid under his clothes.

The investigation would have, perhaps, been carried to the most innocent lengths but for the intervention of a middle aged man of distinguished appearance, who wore a white cravat and gold spectacles and was sitting by the fire. At sight of Prosper
he started with surprise and seemed much agitated. He stepped forward
and seemed about to speak to him,
then suddenly changed his mind and
sat down again.

In spite of his own troubles, the cashier could not help
seeing that this man kept his eyes fastened upon him. Did he know him?
Valhly did he try to recollect having met him before. This man, treated with all the deference due to a chief,
was no less a personage than a celebrated member of the detective corps,
M. Lecoeq. When the men who were searching Prosper were about to take off his boots, saying that a knife might be concealed in them, M. Lecoeq waved them aside, saying, "That is sufficient."

He was obeyed. All the formalities
being ended, the unfortunate cashier
was taken to a narrow cell. The heavily barred door was swung to and locked upon him. He breathed freely. At last he was alone. Yes, he believed himself to be alone. He was ignorant that a prison is made of glass; that the accused is like a miserable insect under the microscope of an entomologist.
He did not know that the walls have eyes.

that he at once gave vent to his suppressed feeling and, dropping his mask
of impassibility, burst into a flood of tears. His wrath, long pent up, now flashed out like a smoldering fire. In a paroxysm of rage he uttered imprecations and curses. He dashed himself against the prison walls like a wild beast in a cage.

In the evening when the jailer
brought him his supper he found him
lying on his pallet, with his face buried
in the pillow, weeping bitter tears.
He was not hungry. Now that he was alone, he fed upon his own bitter thoughts. He sank from a state of frenzy into one of stupefying despair.
The night was long and terrible, and for the first time he had nothing to count the hours by as they slowly dragged on but the measured tread of the patrol who came to relieve the sentinels. He suffered agony. In the morning he dropped into a sleep, from which he was awakened by the rough voice of the jailer.

"Come, monsieur," he said, "to the
judge of instruction."

"Let us go," said Prosper, without
stopping to repair his disordered toilet.

During the passage the jailer said,
"You are very fortunate in having
your case brought before an honest man."

The jailer was right. Endowed with remarkable penetration, firm, unbiased,
equally free from false pity and excessive severity, M. Patrigent possessed in an eminent degree all the qualities necessary for the delicate and difficult office of judge of instruction.

Prosper was escorted along a corridor, through a room full of policemen,
down a flight of steps, across a kind of cellar and then up a steep staircase which seemed to have no end. Finally he reached a long, narrow gallery, upon
which opened many doors bearing different numbers. Summoning all his courage, he placed his hand on the doorknob and was about to enter when
the jailer stopped him.

"Don't be in such haste," he said.
"Sit down here, and when your turn comes you will be called."

The wretched man obeyed, and his
keeper took a seat beside him.

Presently a little old man dressed in black, wearing the insignia of his office, a steel chain, cried out:
"Prosper Bertomy!"

Prosper arose and, without knowing how, found himself in the office of the
judge of instruction.

M. Patrigent's homely face, with its irregular outline and short red whiskers, lit up by a pair of bright, intelligent eyes and a kindly expression, was calculated to impress one favorably at first sight.

"Well," he said abruptly, "you are accused of having robbed M. Fauvel of 350,000 francs. What have you to answer?"

"That I am innocent, monsieur; I
swear that I am innocent."

"I hope you are," said M. Patrigent,
"and you may count upon me to assist
you to the extent of my ability in proving your innocence. Have you anything to say in your defense?"

"Ah, monsieur, what can I say when I cannot understand this dreadful business myself? I can only refer you to my past life."

The judge interrupted him with an impatient gesture.

"Let us be specific. The robbery
was committed under circumstances
that prevent suspicion from falling upon any one but M. Fauvel and yourself. Do you suspect any one else?"

"No, monsieur."

"You declare yourself to be innocent;
therefore the guilty party must be M.
Fauvel."

Prosper did not answer.

"Have you," persisted the judge,
"any cause for believing that M. Fau-vel robbed himself? If you have, say so."

The prisoner preserved a rigid silence.

"I see, monsieur," said the judge,
"that you need time for reflection.
Listen to the reading of your examination, and after signing it you will return to prison."

The unhappy man was overcome.
The last ray of hope was gone. He signed the paper without looking at it.
He tottered as he left the judge's office so that the keeper was forced to support him.

If Prosper had remained an hour longer
in the gallery, he would have seen
the same bailiff who had called him,
come out of the judge's office and cry
out:

"Number three?"

Witness No. 3, who was awaiting his turn and answered the call, was M.
Fauvel.

Although he had very slightly examined Prosper, the judge was now
scrupulously attentive and particular
in having every question answered.

"Did you ever suspect your cashier
of being dishonest?" he asked.

"Certainly not. Yet there were a thousand reasons which should have made me distrustful."

"What reasons?"

"M. Bertomy gambled. I have known of his spending whole nights at the gaming table and losing immense sums of money. He was intimate with a bad set. Once he was mixed up with one of my clients, M. de Clameran, in a scandalous gambling affair."

"You must confess, monsieur," interrupted the judge, "that you were very imprudent, not to say culpable, to have entrusted your safe to such a man."

"Ah, monsieur, Prosper was not always thus. Until the past year he was a model of goodness. He was received into my house as one of my family.
He spent all of his evenings with us
and was the bosom friend of my eldest son, Lucien. Then suddenly he left us
and never came to the house again.
Yet I had every reason to believe him
attached to my niece Madeleine."

"Then you can see no motive for your cashier's conduct?"

The banker paused to reflect.

"It is impossible for me to account for it. I have however always supposed that he had a woman."

young man whom he met at my house
about this time, M. Raoul de Lagora."

"Ah! And who is this young man?"

"A relative of my wife, a charming fellow, but somewhat wild, though
rich enough to pay his way."

The judge listened attentively to this, then wrote the name Lagora at the bottom of an already long list of his memoranda.

"Now," he said, "we are coming to the point. You are sure that the robbery was not committed by any in your house?"

"Quite sure, monsieur."

"You always kept your key?"

"Usually I carried it about on my person, and whenever I left it at home
I put it in the secretary drawer in my bed chamber."

"Where was it the evening of the robbery?"

"In my secretary."

"Parbleu! for interrupting you,"
said M. Fauvel, "and permit me to tell you that to a safe like mine the key is of no importance. In the first place,
one must know the word upon which the five movable buttons turn. With the word one can open it without the key, but without the word?"

"And this word you never told to any one?"

"To no one in the world, monsieur,
and sometimes I would have been puzzled to know myself with what word
the safe had been shut."

"Had you forgotten it on the day of the theft?"

"No; the word had been changed the day before, and its peculiarity struck me."

"What was it?"

"Gipsy—G-i-p-s-y," said the banker,
spelling the name.

M. Patrigent wrote down the name.

"One more question, monsieur. Were you at home the evening before the
robbery?"

"No; I dined and spent the evening
with a friend. When I returned home
about 10 o'clock, my wife was in bed,
and I went to bed immediately."

"And you were ignorant of what
sum there was in the safe?"

"Absolutely. After my positive orders I could only suppose that a small sum had been left there over night. I stated this fact to the commissary in
M. Bertomy's presence, and he ac-knowledgeed it to be the case."

"That will do, monsieur."

M. Patrigent was well informed of the high standing of the banker and knew almost as much of his affairs as did M. Fauvel himself.

He asked him to sign his testimony
and then escorted him to the door of his office, a rare favor on his part.

Five o'clock struck before the list of witnesses summoned for the day was exhausted, but the task of M. Patrigent was not yet finished. He rang
for his bailiff, who instantly appeared,
and said to him:

"Go at once and bring Fanferlot
here."

It was some time before the detective answered the summons. Having met a colleague on the gallery, he thought it his duty to treat him to a drink, and the bailiff had found it necessary to bring him from the little inn
at the corner.

"How is it that you keep people
waiting?" said the judge.

Fanferlot bowed almost to the floor.
Despite his smiling face, he was very uneasy. To follow the Bertomy case alone it required a double play that might be discovered at any moment.
To manage at once the cause of justice and his own ambition he took great risks, the least of which was the losing his place.

"I have had a great deal to do," he said to excuse himself, "and have not lost any time."

And he began to give a detailed account of his movements. He was embarrassed, for he spoke with all sorts of restrictions, picking out what was to be said and avoiding what was to be left unsaid. Thus he gave the history of Cavallion's letter, which he handed to the judge, but he did not breathe a word of Madeleine, the other hand,
he gave biographical details, very incidentally indeed of Prosper and Mme. Gipsy, which he had collected from various quarters. As he heard the story M.
Patrigent's convictions were strengthened.

"The young man is evidently guilty,"
he said.

Fanferlot did not reply. His opinion
was different, but he was delighted
that the judge was on the wrong track,
thinking that his own glory would
thereby be the greater when he discovered the real culprit. The fact was that this grand discovery was as far off as it had ever been.

After hearing all he had to tell, the judge dismissed Fanferlot, telling him
to return in the morning.

"Above all," he said as Fanferlot left
the room, "do not lose sight of the girl Gipsy. She must know where the money is and can put us on the track."

Fanferlot smiled knowingly.

"You may rest easy about that, monsieur. The lady is in good hands."

Left to himself, although the evening was far advanced, M. Patrigent
continued to busy himself with the case and to arrange that the rest of the depositions should be made. This case had actually taken possession of his mind. It was at the same time puzzling and attractive. It seemed to be surrounded by a cloud of mystery,
which he determined to penetrate.

NEWS OF THE RIVERS.

Observations taken at 7 a.m. River 13.4 on the gauge, a rise of 1.0 in last 24 hours. Wind northeast, a good breeze. Weather cloudy and cooler. Temperature 43. Fell, Observer.

The Wilford is due out of the Cumberland river with ties.

The Ten Broeck will leave today for Cumberland river for ties.

The Bob Dudley left on time this morning for Cairo with a good trip. The Clyde left last night at 9 o'clock for Tennessee river with a good trip.

The Clifton is due tonight out of the Tennessee river en route to St. Louis.

The Mary Stewart arrived last night from Elizabethtown and departed today on her return trip.

The Buttorff was due yesterday morning but had not arrived from Nashville at press time.

The Dick Fowler will get off the ways this week and will enter her trade again next Monday probably.

There are still 15,000,000 bushels of coal loaded in the harbor at Pittsburg and ready to leave on the first good rise.

The I. N. Hook did not get away yesterday but is awaiting for her barges before going into Tennessee river for ties.

The Bowel is being let off the ways today and will be ready to go into the tie trade again within a week.

The Memphis will leave St. Louis today at noon and will pass Paducah en route to Tennessee river about Sunday morning.

The Charleston left last night for Tennessee river 24 hours late. She had a big trip and it took over a day to unload her at Jopka.

The Tennessee will arrive from Tennessee river tonight or tomorrow with an excellent trip and will leave again Saturday on her return trip.

The lighthouse steamer Goldenrod passed Louisville. She will inspect all the government lights on the lower Ohio and Tennessee rivers on her trip.

The Sunshine, which has been laying up for four months, will leave Cincinnati today and will arrive here Sunday en route to Memphis. This is her first trip since the water began to rise.

The Shiloh left yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock for Danville with the following officers in charge: Captain Lon Kell; pilot, Charles Beard; first clerk, Samuel Smith of St. Louis; second clerk, Charles Luter, formerly third clerk on the Tennessee.

The Henrietta will be pulled out on the docks Saturday after the Bart E. Linehan has been let off. The Linehan has been thoroughly overhauled and a new hull built under her. The Henrietta will be overhauled preparatory to going into the Cumberland river trade.

The new steamer Shiloh went from here to Paducah on her first trip like a race horse, says the Courier-Journal. She is going to prove what she was built for—a fine, fast steamboat. The Paducah rowers have already nicknamed her "de fast hose." On the trial trip she ran 2 miles upstream in 50 minutes. When she gets "limbered up" she will be the fastest steamboat on the Tennessee river.

SAFE BLOWERS CASE

A NUMBER GO TO SMITHLAND TO TESTIFY.

Messrs. Emmett Kincaid and William Bowman of Cincinnati, secret service men, arrived in the city last night from Cincinnati and this morning left for Smithland to appear against Ernest Elmdorf and Thomas Wing, alias "Spotty," who are charged with grand larceny and safe blowing. The case is an interesting one, as Elmdorf is from Paducah and was caught through his efforts to smuggle saws through the jail bars in the leaves of a magazine. This led to his capture and the above gentlemen are detectives who worked on the case. Josh Taylor of Morganfield, another witness, passed up yesterday to Smithland. Chief Collins and Officer Joe Woods are the Paducah witnesses. The case will be tried today or tomorrow.

USUAL ORDER REVERSED.

A NEW STORE.

F.M. KIRBY AND CO. OPEN NEW STORE TOMORROW.

A new addition to Paducah's commercial world is the new 5 and 10c store of F. M. Kirby and Co., which will throw open its doors to the public tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

This store is one of 20 stores owned by the firm of F. M. Kirby and Co., of Wilkesbarre, Pa., and bids fair to equal the success attained by the other stores in this great chain. The parent store is in Wilkesbarre, Pa., with branches in Columbus, O., Providence R. I., Cleveland, Pawtucket, Baltimore, Dayton, Woonsocket, R. I., Pittsfield, Mass.; Savannah, Williamsport, Pa.; New Orleans, Louisville, Zanesville, Lexington, Charleston, Lynchburg, Va., and Paducah. There is nothing sold in these stores over 10c and the values given at that price are truly wonderful. The policy of the management to buy in the greatest quantities is the only way in which such values could be given and with 20 stores to buy for, it is an easy matter to get the closest prices from manufacturers. This is the lever used by Messrs. Kirby and Co.

The store here is a pretty one. The building, the one next to L. B. Ogilvie and Co., has been refitted throughout with new front and handsome cherry fixtures and is well appointed.

The formal opening of the store will be at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Prof. Wm. Deal's orchestra will give a concert from 2 to 7 and every one is invited to attend. The store will open for regular business Saturday morning at 8 o'clock. The stock is all new and comprises jewelry, candy, dry goods, notions, glassware, china, crockery and a large line of imported and domestic toys.

Mr. A. P. Kiefer, the traveling manager for the company and Mr. W. P. Meyer the manager of the Louisville store are here to assist Mr. Fred Barker, who will be the local manager, in the opening.

The Sun bespeaks for the new firm the greatest measure of success and extends them its best wishes.

STEEL TRUST IN ENGLAND.

London, Dec. 4.—Work of consolidating and amalgamating the various firms engaged in the iron and steel industry in this country is proceeding steadily.
